The North American Review

Edited by LLOYD BRYCE.

"The wisest witnesses of the future are the days that are to come," said the learned Grecian. But the wisest and best now available are the days that are past, and the work done in them. These are witnesses that bear impressive and convincing testimony to the unparalleled excellence and usefulness of THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW during the coming year.

For three-quarters of a century, the REVIEW has held a foremost place among the best periodicals of the world, and it is universally recognized to-day as the most brilliant and the most influential review published in the English language. Among the contributors to the REVIEW under its new management may be mentioned: the Rt. Hon. W. E. GLADSTONE; the Hon. JAS. G. BLAINE; Cardinal GIBBONS; the Hon. T. B. REED, Speaker of the House of Representatives; the Hon. J. G. CARLISLE, ex-Speaker; Hon. JEFFERSON DAVIS; THOMAS A. THIS IS NEWS FROM AFRICA, EVEN TO "STANLEY."

A SAILOR he sailed to the Cape of Good Hope,
To hoodwink the natives with horrible soap;
But the natives were wise and refused him to land
Unless he could show the RÉCAMIER brand.

THEN straightway the sailor he sailed home again,
And again he sailed forth to the black African—
Lo! the natives caressed him, created him king;—
So it paid the poor sailor to sell the right thing;

A KING!—just to think—of the Cape of Good Hope!
And all through the sale of RÉCAMIER SOAP.

IT is possible to infer from this beautiful and appropriate Poem that the Africans have not yet heard of the other Récamier Preparations. As they will undoubtedly read this Souvenir with eager interest it gives us pleasure to assure them and you that

BIOGRAPHY OF
HENRY M. STANLEY.

The life of the great explorer, Henry M. Stanley, forms probably the most picturesque chapter in modern history. It is brim full of stirring incident and distinguished achievement, and is thoroughly cosmopolitan in the interest it excites. Within the necessarily narrow limits of a sketch of this kind, it is impossible to accomplish more than a brief outline of the more salient features embodied in Henry M. Stanley's brilliantly checkered career from a childhood of poverty amongst the Welsh hills to the present time, with its full measure of well-earned honors.

Stanley was born near the old town of Denbigh, Wales, in 1841, of parents by the name of Rowlands. At thirteen years of age, Rowlands, or Stanley, made his way to Liverpool, without resources or definite plans. Arriving there, he at once shipped as cabin boy on a vessel bound for New Orleans. In that city the boy's kindly "Fates" took him in hand. Henry Morton Stanley, a prominent merchant of the Crescent City, gave him employment, learned to love him, and finally adopted the young wanderer. But the new father died intestate shortly after this act of kindness, leaving the boy nothing but a name and a remembrance—the one honorable, and the other sacred.

When the clouds of civil war settled down over this country, young Stanley, true to his adventurous disposition, promptly enlisted in the Confederate army. But his career in the "Grey" was short-lived, terminating in capture at the battle of Pittsburgh Landing, and a gallant escape by a long swim across the river.

Stanley lost no time in reaching England, but after a short visit to his old home and a few months behind the counters of a Liverpool banking house, inherent nerve and energy reasserted themselves, and the subject of our sketch once more turned his back upon Britain and again worked his passage to the United States, this time arriving at New York.

Here, young Stanley, hungry for the experience and excitement of the war, was confronted by an awkward problem, as an ex-Confederate soldier on the wrong side of Mason and Dixon's line. But this energetic soldier of fortune promptly and cleverly cut the "Gordian knot" by enlisting in the Federal navy.

He served with honor for two years on board the ironclad Ticonderoga. At the close of the war Stanley made an extended tour of Turkey and Asia Minor, revisiting Wales in 1866.

He returned to the United States in 1868, to be recruited into the newspaper ranks under the standard of the New York Herald.

As the representative of this journal he accompanied the English-Abyssinian Expedition, headed by the gallant Sir Robert Napier. Later, and in the same capacity, he followed the fortunes of the "Carlist" struggle in Spain, and in this, as in all his other journalistic assignments, distinguished himself by fearlessness, energy and promptitude in collecting and dispatching intelligence.

But it was not until October 17th, 1869, that the keynote of his life was sounded in the message that flashed under the sea from the proprietor of the New York Herald. It was short, but of giant importance to the cause of humanity and exploration, and meant fame for the already well-known man who received it—"Find Livingston."

This was a task, indeed, but Stanley brought his well-trained energies to bear upon the work, and after months of ceaseless labor completed the organization of the expedition at Zanzibar in January, 1871.

A month later, with a force of 190 followers, he commenced his famous march into the interior of Africa. The task set before him was to find a man who was believed to be somewhere in the neighborhood of Lake Tanganyika.

For months the gallant search went on, beset by savage interferences and jungle fevers, but at last, after a journey of 236 days from the coast, Stanley looked down from a lofty ridge of hills upon Ujiji on the banks of Lake Tanganyika. An hour later he and Livingston met. How they together explored the lake country, and how they parted in the wilderness of Unyamyembe, are matters of history requiring no commemoration in this brief sketch.

It was on the 6th of May, 1872, that Stanley reached the coast in triumph with the news of Livingston's safety, and at the end of the month he sailed for Europe. Here he was fêted by the Royal Geographical Society, and received the patron's medal of that institution. It was at this time that he published his world-famous work, "How I Found Livingston."

In 1874, the proprietors of the New York Herald and London Daily Telegraph agreed to share the expense of an elaborate exploration of the lake region in Equatorial Africa. Stanley was called upon to perform the dangerous work, which embodied tracing the course of the Lualaba, and clearing up the many geographical uncertainties that rendered that part of the world practically unknown. The expedition started inland from the African coast on the 17th of November, 1874. All know the years of toil and deadly danger, of mutiny, STANLEY'S WORKS.

THE DARK CONTINENT. Through the Dark Continent; or, the Sources of the Nile, Around the Great Lakes of Equatorial Africa, and Down the Livingstone River to the Atlantic Ocean. With 149 Illustrations and Colored Maps. By HENRY M. STANLEY. pp. xxxv., 1,088. 2 vols., 8vo, Cloth, $7.50.

Such a series of extraordinary incidents has not often been recorded. The book is like a fascinating romance. He who takes it up to glance through its pages will read on and on till he has finished, in spite of himself.—Cincinnati Commercial.

No summary of this remarkable journey can do justice to the fascinating volumes in which Stanley records his experience. His work has all the absorbing interest of romance.—N. Y. Times.

The story seems to resemble the vast river along whose course its scene is laid, gathering strength, intensity, and volume as it proceeds, until at last there is laid before the reader's imagination a picture of danger, terrible escape and thrilling adventure, so striking that we know not where to find a parallel for its absorbing interest.

For deep dramatic interest we know of nothing in the whole range of modern travel equaling the scenes here described.—London Daily News.

THE CONGO. The Congo and the Founding of its Free State. A Story of Work and Exploration. By HENRY M. STANLEY. pp. xxxviii., 1,012. With over One Hundred Full-page and Smaller Illustrations; Colored Maps and Marginal Notes. 2 vols., 8vo, Cloth, $7.50.

The record of one of the greatest works done for civilization in our times, and which promises results whose magnitude and importance, both for Africa and for Christendom in general, it is impossible at this time to predict.—Independent, N. Y.

COOMASSIE AND MAGDALA. The Story of Two British Campaigns in Africa. By HENRY M. STANLEY. pp. xiv., 506. With Maps and Illustrations. 8vo, Cloth, $3.50.

Mr. Stanley has indelibly written his name on three out of the four parts of Africa which have the most romantic interest.—London Daily News.

EMIN'S RESCUE. The Story of Emin's Rescue as Told in Stanley's Letters. Published by Mr. Stanley's permission. Edited by J. SCOTT KELTIE, Librarian to the Royal Geographical Society. With Map of the Route. 8vo, Cloth, 50 cents.

We have here a graphic account of one of the most wonderful expeditions ever undertaken by man. . . . His story is told with simplicity, but with a certain graphic vividness that is very attractive.—Newark Daily Advertiser.

The above works are for sale by all Booksellers, or will be sent by the publishers, postage prepaid, to any part of the United States, Canada, or Mexico, on receipt of price.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, Per Year, Postage Free, $4.

Novel and striking features for 1891 will be The Great South American Series, by THEODORE CHILD, being a full exposition of the five Spanish-American republics of South America, with numerous illustrations from photographs, and by the best artists; interesting papers on Southern California, by CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER; on London, by WALTER BESANT; on Wessex Folk, by THOMAS HARDY; Sketches of Eastern Travel, by CONSTANCE FENIMORE WOOLSON; a novel by GEORGE DU MAURIER (his first), with illustrations by the author; an interesting Collection of Private Letters of Charles Dickens; a novel by CHARLES EGBERT CRADDOCK; a novelette by W. D. HOWELLS; and the usual abundance of choice short stories and interesting and timely articles. The editorial departments will continue to be conducted by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS, WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS, and CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER.

HARPER'S WEEKLY, Per Year, Postage Free, $4.

For thirty-four years Harper's Weekly has never ceased to justify its title as a "Journal of Civilization." It leaves untouched no important element of the world's progress, and presents a record, equally trustworthy and interesting, of the notable events, persons and achievements of our time.

The Special Supplements which are given with each number of the Weekly afford space for the exhaustive treatment in literary and pictorial form of a great variety of subjects.

As a family journal, Harper's Weekly will be edited with strict regard to the qualities that make it a safe and welcome visitor to every home. Coarseness and vulgarity will be strangers to its columns, and scenes that people of pure tastes would shrink from witnessing will be deemed unworthy of pictorial representation.

HARPER'S BAZAR, Per Year, Postage Free, $4.

Harper's Bazar, issued weekly, will enter upon its twenty-fourth volume in 1891. Retaining all the features which have hitherto distinguished it, and adding others of unique attractiveness, the Bazar for 1891 will not hesitate to claim precedence as the leading home journal for women in the world. Everything which is of interest to mothers and daughters, and which contributes to the happiness of the fireside, will be included in its weekly issue.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, per Year, Postage Free, $2.

The aim of its conductors has been to make Harper's Young People the best and most comprehensive weekly in the world for young readers, and by general consent of the press, both in this country and Great Britain, that aim has been realized.

The programme for the year is a rich one. In fiction there will be Kirk Munroe's serial, "Campmates: A Story of the Plains," which will be continued until the 20th of January, 1891. This will be followed by a charming story by Sophie Sweet, with illustrations by ALICE BARBER; and this in turn by a notable work by Howard Pyle, illustrated by the author. Besides these, there will be two short serials by R. K. Munkatrick and Annie Bronson King; and stories in two or three parts by THOMAS NELSON PAGE, HJALMAR HJORTH BOYSEN, EDWIN LASSETTER BYNNER, J. R. CORYELL, NORA PERRY, HARRIET PRESCOTT SPORFORD, MARY E. WILKINS, and others. Short Stories will continue to be one of the most attractive features of the magazine. A series of illustrated articles on Our Principal Colleges, interesting to the boy who is already looking forward from his early teens to his freshman year, will be written for boys by recent graduates.

Booksellers and Postmasters usually receive subscriptions. Subscriptions sent direct to the publishers should be accompanied by Post-office Money Order or Draft. When no time is specified subscriptions will begin with the current number.

Published by HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

WEBER

UPRIGHT PIANO.

IT is hardly necessary to say anything in reference to the Grand— Concert, Baby and Parlor— for the public has no doubts regarding them. Many years of trial have firmly established them in their confidence; but Upright Pianos are looked upon with suspicion and well-founded prejudice, owing to so many failures in years past, the many difficulties surrounding their construction, and their former inferiority in quantity and quality of tone. Now the fact is, they were formerly made in large quantities by inferior makers in the cheapest possible manner, and sold at a lower price than the Square Pianos; whereas the Upright is the more expensive Piano to manufacture. People supposed because the piano was so small and compact that it could be made much cheaper. Unprincipled manufacturers took advantage of this, and the result was a thin, woody tone, and no promptness or elasticity of touch. The weakness of the frame made their standing in tune impossible, till it was at last an accepted fact by the public that they could not be made to stand in tune and were worthless.

The convenience of their form, their adaptability to boudoir and small rooms, induced a few of the most prominent manufacturers to commence a series of experiments to produce an instrument which would stand the test. The result is most astonishing. By means of the extra frames, their capacity for standing in tune is unquestionable. The volume of tone is fully equal to the small grand—of most exquisitely musical character, pure and sympathetic, brilliant, without being harsh, and of astonishing fullness. The action and mechanism require, because of their compactness, much more care and a higher class of workmanship; and so long as the purchasers are content to procure these instruments from only first-class manufacturers, the demand will constantly increase.

The Weber Upright has astonished all the foreign artists who visited this country, many of whom have taken one with them on their return. This again has caused European manufacturers of high repute to purchase the Weber Upright as a pattern. They all agree that it is the BEST UPRIGHT PIANO THEY EVER SAW.

The peculiarity of the shape admits of elaborate ornamentation, and the manufacturer has made and is continually making most beautiful cases to correspond with the various styles of furniture.

The Weber Upright is made in all styles of cases and kinds of wood—Ebony, Walnut, French Burl, Mahogany, Oak, etc.

famine, sickness, and savage hostility, through which Stanley forced his way slowly around Lake Victoria Nyanza—and along the banks, around the cataracts, and through the jungles of the Lualaba River—to the Congo and the sea. The culmination of this great expedition—Stanley's truest title to fame—was the establishment of the Free Congo State in 1879.

In 1884, Stanley was back in Europe, and in attendance at Berlin, upon the first sitting of the International Conference for the definite constitution of the Free State.

This was effected in 1885, the King of the Belgians being elected sovereign of the new State, and the great river opening its mighty channels to the commerce of the world.

About this time a messenger emerged from the center of the "dark continent" with the news of Emin Bey's fidelity to his duty as Governor of the Egyptian Equatorial Province, which for three years had been shut off from communication with the home government by the revolt in the Soudan.

Emin Bey had been given up as lost, and the news of his survival stirred up the Egyptian government to promote Emin to the rank of Pasha, and to assume half the cost of a relief expedition. Stanley was cabled by the King of the Belgians to return to Europe, which he promptly did, canceling all his engagements in this country.

Then it was found that Stanley was the man selected to lead the dangerous rescue. Leaving London late in January, 1887, for Zanzibar, Stanley organized the expedition, effected treaties pledging hostile tribes to peace, and reached the mouth of the Congo on March 18th. That great forced march across the continent, occupying nearly two years in its thrillingly dangerous performance, is still fresh in the minds of every reader of current news, while the geographical secrets it laid bare are of conspicuous and unquestioned scientific value. Emin Pasha was rescued, and at the same time the most extraordinary expedition of modern history was accomplished.

To our Readers.

Mr. STANLEY has justly immortalized his name by his discoveries.

The American people are discovering the fact that RICKSECKER'S New York Perfumes surpass the foreign, and his new six story laboratory is taxed to supply the demand.

A noted writer thus describes one of them :

"A bunch of fragrant roses, bound with other roses more fragrant still: a ceaseless returning succession of odors, none of which you can seize singly in your eagerness to grasp the whole—such is RICKSECKER'S 'Golden Gate' Perfume; finally opening out new lovely aromatic delights to the senses."

One Volume Octavo, Fully Illustrated.

"You have commenced your story where a great gap occurred in my own narrative, a gap which you alone could fill up. You have told your story with so much modesty, and such absolute truthfulness and loyalty to myself, that I cannot but feel pleased and grateful to you. There is within the covers of your volume much matter that is quite new to me, much that is extremely thrilling and exciting, and the whole is related with very enviable literary tact and skill. With all my heart I commend to American and English readers this true tale of work manfully and nobly done and so modestly told."

THE NESTOR OF THE MAGAZINES.

"According to Homer, NESTOR, the old warrior and the wise counsellor of the Greeks, had ruled over three generations of men, and was wise as the immortal gods."

The North American Review

has been in the van of American thought for more than three-quarters of a century, ranking always with the best and most influential periodicals in the world. It is the mouthpiece of the men who know most about the great topics on which Americans require to be informed from month to month, its contributors being the leaders of thought and action in every field. Those who would take counsel of the highest knowledge on the affairs of the time and learn what is to be said regarding them by the recognized authorities on both sides, must read the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW, the NESTOR of the Magazines.
